EMU, profs avert strike

By Pete Heyn Courier Staff

Eastern Professors at Michigan University settled a contract dispute at 7:29 a.m. Wednesday morning, averting a strike that was scheduled to begin at 8 a.m.

According to information from the university, the American Association of University Professors and negotiatiors for EMU reached a tentative agreement.

Faculty members were instructed by the union to go to their classes Wednesday morn-

The agreement emerged after about 13 hours of negotiations through the night Tuesday and Wednesday morning.

"I think this demonstrates the tremendous commitment and dedication that both groups have to the students of EMU," said

Pamela Young, director of university communications, about the settlement.

Mark Higbee, history professor and a member of the Eastern Michigan University American Association of University Professors, said Tuesday night a vote to strike Tuesday was overwhelming.

The union had announced that its members would go on strike Wednesday morning and begin picketing on the campus.

The classes were scheduled to Community group hosting city picnic

Ypsilanti residents who belong to a neighborhood association or who would like to belong to a neighorhood association, should grab their kids and head to the first picnic of all the community's neighborhood associations.

The event is the brainchild CoPac, Community Policing Action Council, and the goal is to improve communication among CoPac members and associations, said Esther Williams, treasurer of the group.

The picnic will be from noon to 3 p.m. Sept. 4 at Parkridge Park, between Perry and Armstrong streets.

"We have four different goals and one of the goals is to improve communication among CoPac members and associations, as an outgrowth of that we came up with the all-neighborhood association picnic," said Williams.

ing what is good for the individual neighborhood, said Williams. The picnic is to bring all the communities together.

And what would a picnic be without hot dogs? So there will be hot dogs, spaghetti, salad, veggies, chips and watermelon. There will also be soda and water available.

CoPac is part of the police department. Coincidentally.

Parkridge Community Center Youth Board planned something on the same Saturday so that group will be there to provide different information about colleges and universities.

The St. Andrew Lodge, said Williams, will be on site to provide information to children making the transition from junior to senior high.

The Ypsilanti Fire and Police Departments will be at the event with their equipment.

Those attending should bring chairs.

This That

By Judy Busack Courier Staff

You know sometimes there are certain things you don't want to know.

Being a reporter, I usually want all the details I can get. Every last detail.

Complete strangers have told me their life stories because I know the questions

I have told friends I figure that if somebody doesn't want to tell me something, they can say I don't want to tell you something. That seems easy enough to me.

But there are times that I don't want to know everything.

Like last week when I wrote about my plane trip to Maine.

When the pilot announced that we would circle Portland until we could land or until we needed to refuel. More information than I needed. I heard on the television the other day that at any given point in any given place there is a spider within three feet of you. Didn't want to know this. Didn't care to know this. Didn't need to know this.

I can't imagine any reason in the world I would need to know this. How is it going to affect my day? Do I need to plan my day around this type of information?

Spiders are not cute. They aren't even critters that only mothers could love.

I'm sure their mothers even go yuck, I just gave birth to a spider! Honey get it, step on it, quick before it gets Another thing I don't need to know is the food inspection reports.

When I go to a restau-rant, I want to be totally ignorant about what is going on in the kitchen.

As long as my food is not dropped on the floor, spit on or touched by dirty hands, I don't care if the kitchen help got marked down because they put the silverware in the drawer pointing in the wrong direction. I actually read a report on a restaurant that got marked down for that.

'Breaking News" seems to be the big thing for television stations these days. They have to be the first, the fastest and the greatest in getting that "breaking news" out to the public.

They don't care if the information is correct and they really don't care if the information is something the general public really cares to know about.

Breaking news to me is a down and out disaster, or a terrible storm headed our

I don't need to know that ment and festival. somebody stumbled on a crack in the sidewalk and broke his or her foot foot. Another thing under the heading of I don't really need or care to know is when somebody is going to use the 'facilities." I'm a big detail type of person, but I don't need to know every little detail. When I'm in a place of business, I don't need to know that somebody is ill or hasn't shown up for work. All I want to be is helped; I don't need to know that they are hav-ing a terrible time because Dippydo didn't show up to work, and this is like maybe the fourth or fifth or 10th or 17th time she has done this.

And I don't need or want to know when she actually does come into work she was wearing this very strange outfit and her hair - you just wouldn't believe ...

New school dedicated

By Kathleen Conat Courier Correspondent

Between 450 and 500 people at-tended the official opening of the Wil-low Run Middle School to listen to dignitaries speak, then tour the building that is still "a work in progress.'

Ceremonies began with Sup erinten-dent Douglas Benit introducing State Sen. Liz Brater, who presented an offi-cial document congratulating the school district on this achievement and signed by Gov. Jennifer Grandholm, State Rep. Ruth Ann Jamnick and Brater.

Jamnick joined Brater at the podium as they made the presentation to Benit and Board of Education President Claudette Braxton.

Braxton then spoke of the new school as "a dream of mine that you, the Willow Run community, made happen." She also acknowledged the efforts of former superintendent Gail Green, who led the effort for the middle school in the beginning.

All the other board members present then spoke, thanking the voters of the Willow Run district for their support. Among them was Mark Wilde, who was cochair of the citizens committee at the beginning of the effort to build the school, which later led to his running for board trustee.

Wilde said he was "still in awe" of the effort that had resulted in the new building. "It's hard to take it all in."

Principal Teresa Wilson and Assis-tant Principal Angela McCray were introduced. Wilson said she was 'ex-tremely excited by this new venture" and expressed her hopes for a bright future.

The ribbon was then cut by Braxton and former president Clifford Smith, and the crowd streamed through the floors.

Granholm said she hopes state lawmakers will act on her request when they return to Lansing next week.

"Toyota is poised to expand their operation in Michigan and, in the process, provide thousands of great job opportunities for Michigan residents," Granholm said. "What Toyota is proposing is the type of development that is in keeping with our goal of making Michigan a global economic powerhouse in the 21st century and, therefore, we are going to do everything in our power to make their dream a reality in York Township."

Toyota Motor Corp. has bid $9 million for the parcel. MESSAGE OF THE WEEK

By Rev. Peter Harris Stony Creek UNC

While watching the first week of the Olympics from Athens, Greece, a few things have occurred to me:

I love Olympians who cry when they win a medal.

I love Olympians who cry when they don't win a medal. I'love Olympic coaches who cry, and the parents of Olympians who cry.

I especially love watching the male athletes who are so "macho" cry. What a great testimony to younger male ath-

I love Olympians who at the end of the race search the crowd for their parents, coaches and friends; all those folks who supported, helped and loved the athlete during the long training time and now share in the victory of the moment

When grief goes wrong

As regular readers of this column know by now, grief is a process, not a state of mind. It is the body's healthy way of coping with the reality of a loss marshaling its energies toward getting on with life.

But that process can go awry, in three ways:

selves from expressing grief. The may fear losing control, or fearing being ridiculed for expressing ED their OCHALEK tions

Mourners who cannot "let go" of the deceased may find themselves mired in excessive grief They may shun new relationships, stay home, and think obsessively about the lost loved one. It may seem impossible to live a full life as a single person. Destructive acts are the hall mark of distorted grief - such things as wishing harm upon oneself, violence or anti-social behavior. In addition, ignoring one's own survival needs, such as eating and sleeping, or ignoring longtime friends, is evidence of distored grief.

If someone you love is suffering from grief gone wrong, it is a blessing to direct that person to help. Grief counselors are trained in helping survivors to get their mourning "back on track," so that it can again be a healing process. We can help put you in touch with such counselors. Please feel free to call if we can be of service.

Middle schools better serve younger students

By Kathleen Conat Courier Correspondent

What's the difference between a junior high and a middle school? It's a question I asked several friends the other day and no one really knew.

"A junior high has only seventh and eighth grades. while a middle school has sixth, seventh and eighth?" one lady suggested.

But, when I asked the question of Robert Wilkinson, Ypsilanti's Director of Auxiliary Programs and former principal at West Middle School, he was off and running.

A junior high is just what it seems, a scaled down version of a high school for whatever combination of grades. Every teacher is competent in his or her chosen subject, but does not coordinate what he's teaching with other teachers and other subjects. There is no flexibility to the schedule and there is inconsistency as to rules

A middle school, though, has teams of teachers coordinating their lesson plans with one another. They work together to get to know the kids well and establish an emotional connection. Classroom rules, such as no gum chewing, are consistent with all the teachers in the

The reason I started asking about this topic is because I've recently been hearing and reading that educators have pretty much given up on teaching kids anything during the years of early puberty. The middle school years, they're saying, are merely for keeping kids in a holding pattern until they get to high school.

Wilkinson disagrees with this. Although he concurs that the pubescent years are complicated, he believes the middle school philosophy can keep these students on the path to actually learning something.

That philosophy leans heavily on consistency and security. It says kids at this age only learn when they are in a comfortable, trusting, caring environment. Kids of this age thrive on consistency, but are easily thrown off kilter by the inconsistency one finds in high schools and junior highs.

For Wilkinson and others who agree, the goal should be the development of the child; not the test results. And, since middle schools have become the norm in Washtenaw County as well as other parts of the country, this is important to remember when middle schools fail to make the Adequate Yearly Progress standards of school structure, teachers are a vital component and need to be carefully chosen. it seems to me principals are the key. As Wilkinson said, it's important that principals make sure students can learn and make sure teachers can teach.

While, in this middle

This requires middle school principals to stay in close contact with their teams and make sure the communication vital to success in these efforts continues flowing. The principal also ensures that teachers not lose their focus, which is to get the children to the point where they are ready to be challenged in high school. This makes the job rather labor intensive for

And, I learned, with changes in personnel come challenges to keeping the philosophy in operation. Yet, in order to have the teams that work together for the good of the students, teachers must believe in and practice the team effort and strive to make the emotional connections with their stuprincipals.

My own son is entering high school this year. I find it amazing that he went through three years in middle school and the conceptual differences between it

I recently came across a catalogue packed with clever devices, practical furnishings, and innovative notions to make life seem more comfortable. Among the items offered were Chair Protectors.

"If you cringe at the thought of children using your dining room chairs, but don't want to be an ungracious host, invest in a few of these protectors," read the description. "The heavyduty clear plastic 'bib' protects upholstery from spills, making dinners more enjoyable for everyone.

Honestly, if I cringe at children using my dining room chairs, I don't invite them into my dining room. Rather, I sit them at a card table in the laundry room or OK, kids, let's play Hog Farm! You're the pigs and I'm the farmer; finish your trough and I'll be back with a bucket of dessert. Hey, don't crowd out little sister piglet.

Actually, if dinners could be made more enjoyable with the addition of heavyduty plastic furniture covers, I'd surely invest in a set. However, my sons are past the dropping-food-on-thechair stage. True, mere placemats still cannot contain the edibles ejected from their mouths during feedings, but what can you do?

No, the time comes for every family when chair and table protections are useless, when schedule stress has risen to untenable heights, when there is only one answer for the dilemma of daily dinnertime: Dining

That vast wasteland is not television; it's radio

By C. Tino Lambros Courier Corespondent

I grew up at the end of what Stan Freberg calls "the golden age of radio."

Sitting in your living room you could imagine all kinds of details. One's creative juices could flow wherever you wanted. What did the "Shadow" look like? Were all those great cowboys big, powerful men with white horses? What did Jack Benny's Maxwell look like? We all knew what it sounded like. I still enjoy hearing the Freberg replays of those dramas, cop shows and comedies. Today they sound silly and hokey, but they were wonderful, kind, and mannerly radio. Entertainment. Fun. Something we looked forward to.

Even after TV took many shows away from radio, we could still find interesting, thought-provoking entertaining radio – even if it was disc jockeys playing the hits of the day.

But what has happened to radio today?

Talk radio! I've had about enough of so-called "talk radio." So many stations now call themselves "talk radio" stations. WAAM's new owners even lowered themselves to this format.

It's hard to find truly enter-

Nice conversation. Mannerly, thought-provoking commentary. Things of local interest.

We were raised to be kind and courteous. Everyone is important and everyone's opinion is to be respected whether we agree or not. Our children were brought up the same way. And yet radio and TV present us with the opposite. It's about who can "talk" the loudest, the fastest, and who controls the microphone. What is said is not as important as who is in con-

With all my driving I often search for something to listen to. I tire of the oldies hour after hour. I find myself trying different stations and different formats. Let's see what the great talk show hosts have to say about today's issues. What is the "other side" saying about the Iraqi War. The Elections. The Presidency. The Economy. The National Debt. Gasoline Prices. Education. Taxes. National Health Care. Sports - more sports than one needs to hear about.

You name it - you can find a self-proclaimed expert to expound on any topic.

National Public Radio (NPR) has more variety for your listening pleasure, depending on your prefer-Classical. Jazz. Commentary. Talk. Human NPR asks tough questions, but allows their guests to answer for as long as it takes. They do not interrupt their guests. They do not always agree, but encourage opposing thought. They are polite and mannerly and I have not heard them cut off an answer or a caller, or belittle someone for their responses, questions, or opinions.

I'm good for about ten minutes on most talk radio shows. I can't stand any more. The "talk" begins to sound the same. The names and voices are different, but the mes-sages, attitudes and rudeness are the same. I don't plan to mention any overpaid, pompous, arrogant hosts and hostesses, or their guests. Just suffice it to say, in my mind, they're similar.

Now, I've never been able to keep straight who is on the Left and who is on the Right, who is a Liberal or who is a Conservative, which are patriots and which are not. I believe most of us are quite moderate on most issues and have a couple issues we feel passionate about. Talk radio hosts are passionate and "experts" on every issue that comes before them.

tribes begin to sound similar. That person has shut out other views. It becomes a very narrow scope and there is no discussion or opposing viewpoints. If the host is discussing a candidate, that candi-date has done no wrong. It's the "liberal press" or the "spin doctors" or "liars" or "taken out of context" or some equally feeble rationalization in support of that per-

When did the word "liberal" be-come a negative word? When did the word "conservative" become a positive word? It's like the old children's rhyme about what boys and girls are made of. It's totally ridiculous, but these radio celebrities use it as their "gospel.

He or she who controls the mi-crophone, controls the airwaves. Opposing views are cut off. Callers who agree and swoon over the host, are 'great Americans" and "patriots." Others are called names, not allowed to complete their thoughts, and spoken to in a condescending, sarcastic manner.

One show bills itself as the "no-spin" show with all the truth and facts. Just by proclaiming this, it is automati-

Don't even think about questioning them. become the stupid, ill informed, non-citizen, with the audacity to believe you can speak intelligently on an issue. None of them obviously ever listen to themselves. If they did, they wouldn't say the things they say. It's a matter of control. Who speaks the loudest. Who says the nastiest things to callers. Who's the sweetest, nicest person to guests that do them the most good.

Many "talk shows" are during drive times. Maybe "road rage" is increased by these shows. I hate to say it, but they have gotten me riled up and frustrated with their blabbering. These belligerent, self-serving, self- pro- occasion. I know I won't lisclaimed experts on everything have a way of inciting.

Education is a favorite target. They have a guest with long, im-pressive credentials with a list of daunting statistics from a "reliable " source. After listening for a while it is obvious these experts have never been in a classroom for any length of time.

Another host praising his presidential candidate urged listeners that if they didn't vote for his choice, they shouldn't vote at all. Now cally a "spin" show. These isn't this true democracy and I feel anyone on the very radio "personalities" and freedom of choice? I'm sure in Ypsilanti, is a regular contheir guests can say anything his followers thought this tributor to the Courier.)

was a great patriotic idea.

But then common sense takes over and it's time to change the station.

I'm sure as we get closer to the election it will get worse. I'm hoping this "entertainment phase" will pass. It makes me think back to Ed Sullivan. He didn't have any talent either, but he could put together an entertaining show.

Rudeness. Arrogance. Selfrighteousness. Belligerence. Sponsors and program directors have seen this as entertainment. Money. Success. And maybe in a financial and audience sense, it is success. I will continue to listen on ten for long, but it's good to hear what is going on from time to time. It's not what I value. It's not what I find entertaining, thoughtful, or enlightening. But the thought that there are literally thousands of listeners out there that believe and take direction from these hosts is quite disturbing.

There!... WHEW!!! ... I feel a lot better!

Sad to say, the Elder's morose teen-age demeanor easily travels anywhere, especially if our location is not among his preferred bistros (all serving chicken fingers). Of course, this means the Younger's behavior suffers a similar sullenness, brotherly competition fueling their perpetual quest for World Domination.

Oh, acting grumpy, eh, brother? Well, I can be grumpier than you! It's enough to make me wish they stayed at home.

I'd better watch that last one; don't want them developing a taste for crab-stuffed lobster tail or chateaubriand with Béarnaise. But there's little danger of that as long as I stick to restaurants serving chicken fingers.

In the not-so-distant future, dining out will no longer require a table for four; it'll be just the Missus and me. But maybe I'll be lucky enough to regularly enjoy the company of a son or two at lunchtime, their busy schedules notwithstanding.

Then I hope they'll share something they did with friends or saw on television, talk me into a big family outing, or invite me to ac-company them to a favorite store. Maybe I'll even try a taste from their plates, just for some variety from my usual chicken finger diet.

Anyone who recalls his or her own pubescent years will understand why the middle school concept is working. They will also understand why NCLB's standards should not be applied here.

CITY OF YPSILANTI PLANNING COMMISSION PUBLIC HEARING NOTICE Wednesday, September 15, 2004

The City of Ypsilanti Planning Commission will hold a public hearing on Wednesday, September 15, 2004 at 7:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers of the City Hall, One South Huron Street, Ypsilanti, Michigan 48197. The Commission will hold a public hearing on the following application 876 Railroad Street (Lot 592 portion) Special Use Permit

The applicant is requesting Special Use approval to expand an existing towing office and storage facility, which is an unclassified use. The owner was previously granted Special Use and Site Plan approval on 876 Railroad in 1997, which originally only encompassed Lot 593. The towing storage yard was expanded to the adjacent Lot 592 (formerly known as 868 Railroad) to the east, which requires Special Use and Site Plan approval again, as per Section 122-169 of the Zoning Ordinance. Both the 876 Railroad (lot 593) and 868 Railroad (lot 592) parcels were combined in October, 2001 under one Tax Code ID number and the 876 Railroad address. The previous hearing on August 18th was cancelled. All interested citizens are invited to attend this meeting and to send written comments to the City of Ypsilanti, Planning and Development Department, One South Huron Street, Ypsilanti, Michigan 48197. For further information, please call 483-9646.

AUGUS 400 KIDS 400 KIDS OUT OF SCHOOL EVIERY DAY.

We have to. They just don't want to leave. They go to an extraordinary new kind of public school. It's called a Community School for Excellence.

It's open up to 15 hours a day, 6 days a week, 52 weeks a year. Like many schools in this program, it has medical and dental services and a social worker on site. Its extended hours are filled with unique academic and recreational activities.

It's a school where teachers have more time to teach. And students are physically and emotionally better prepared to learn.

So, if you have trouble getting your kids to go to school, find out how you can make it a place they won't want to leave.
